Dear Mr. Weisberg,

I am very embarrassed over my negligence in sending you the enclosed checks. I have included here my original check for $100 plus the letter I wrote at the time. I now include another check for $100 for the materials we ~~spoke~~ spoke of on the phone. This makes the $200 I said I would be sending you. By including another check I ~~felt~~ feel a little better over having waited so long.

What has been keeping me from thinking about the assassination is a telephone poll I have just completed on the readers of Africa Report. This was a rush project necessary because the publisher was thinking of dropping the magazine and I had to complete the survey by Jan 27 if it was to have any influence (in fact, it was a major factor in the decision to keep the magazine).

Now, however, I can spend some time again on the assassination. What finally jarred me into action was a long distance call from Charles Roberts, who evidently has had his interest reawakened by the discussion I had with him. He said he has looked at many of the 85 new documents released and wrote a small article for next weeks Newsweek on the Helms letter to Hoover (?) about Oswald and the U-2 (he didn't know yet whether Newsweek ~~was~~ will be carrying the article).

In any case, you will find enclosed the two checks. I have not yet pursued anything about your materials and the Yale library. My hope now, however, is to come east at the end of February or beginning March, solely for the purpose of the assassination, rather than tying it to some other trip.

My apologies again for the long wait on the money. Usually I am a little more prompt than this.

Best regards,

Jack Crosby
